I will not weary you with another depression story. My present purpose is to notify you that we must curtail the form of the "Alumnus". It will continue to contact with you and I hope you will like it better than ever because of the greater personal touch we shall give to it.

When you receive the May number of the "Alumnus", I will appreciate your reaction to it. Like yourself we are hampered considerably by prevailing conditions and some constructive criticism from you will help us to discover the silver lining.

Wishing you all the blessings of this Eastertide, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Eighty-Third Commencement on June 3, 4, and 5

Bishop McFadden To Be Commencement Speaker

THE University of Dayton will celebrate the 1933 Commencement with Bishop James Augustine McFadden, auxiliary bishop to Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, D.D., bishop of Cleveland, acting as principal speaker at the annual commencement exercises on Monday, June 5, at the N. C. R. schoolhouse, according to the recent announcement made by Rev. Walter C. Tredtin, S.M., president of the university.

Bishop McFadden was rector of Mt. St. Mary's seminary in Norwood from 1917 to 1923 and consequently is well known in these parts. In the latter year he was appointed director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and in 1927 was given the chancellorship of the Cleveland diocese and also the honor of domestic prelate.

After making for himself a remarkable record in the diocese he had the title of Bishop bestowed upon him last September 8th by Bishop Schrembs in the cathedral at Cleveland.

Bishop McFadden was ordained priest on June 17, 1905. In 1914 he became pastor of St. Agnes Church in Elyria for a period of three years, after which followed his career in Ohio which made him today one of the most renowned bishops in the United States.

The announcement of Father Tredtin also said that this year's commencement exercises will be similar to those of other years. They will open on Saturday with an informal alumni program. The baccalaureate services will be held the next morning with the Commencement exercises following on Monday. Bishop McFadden will speak at the latter. The commencement program follows:

Sodalities Hear Talk of Alumnus

Walter C. Reiling, alumnus of the University of Dayton and a senior honor medical student at Harvard University, was the guest speaker at a meeting of the combined sodalities of the Dayton school in the auditorium of the Albert Emmanuel Library recently. Mr. Reiling spoke on his experiences as a Catholic in a non-Catholic university.

Engineering Activities

The Junior and Senior Mechanical Engineers were the guests of the Premier Rubber Company. The students were conducted through the plant by Mr. Fitzgerald, head of the research department. The various stages in the process of preparing rubber and especially the trimming department proved to be of interest.

Seminar topics discussed during the past weeks before the Senior Mechanical Engineers were "Ball Bearings" by Mr. G. Clavin and "Silent Chain Drives" by Mr. R. Martin.

Addressed Varied Organizations in Dayton

Rev. Francis J. Friedel, S.M., spiritual director of the University of Dayton, has given an extended series of lectures during the past month to various organizations throughout the city.

Father Friedel conducted weekly lectures before Catholic and non-Catholic audiences at the Loretto Guild. In his first engagement he spoke on the question, "Is the Catholic Church Modern?" He addressed The Ancient Order of Hibernians on his next appearance in a lecture entitled, "Christ or Barabbas?" His last two lectures of the remaining two weeks were on "The Legal Safeguards of Marriage" and "I Do My Own Thinking."

Between these weekly engagements, Father Friedel spoke before other groups. He addressed The Garvin Literary Forum in the Seminar Room of the University Library on "The Philosophy of Life in Literature," and he appeared before the Knights of Columbus at a "Communion Breakfast" speaking on "Men of Conviction."

Father Friedel terminated his exceptionally active month by conducting a retreat for men sponsored by St. Joseph's Institute.

We are indebted to Father Friedel for his regular contributions to the editorial department of the "Alumnus." As this is the last issue, we wish to express our sincere gratitude and deep appreciation to Father Friedel for his very interesting and enlightening contributions.

U D Law Club Meets

The University of Dayton Law Club held its March meeting Thursday evening, March 30, at 7:30 o'clock in the Albert Emmanuel Library at the University of Dayton.

At this time John S. Dincen lectured on "Bankruptcy," covering the recent amendments and giving a most thorough discussion to this important subject.

Daniel W. Iddings, professor of Federal Procedure in the law school, who secured Mr. Dincen, acted as chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

Because of the Lenten season, no lunch was served following the meeting. A good number were in attendance.

President's Day Is Celebrated at University of Dayton

"President's Day" was celebrated April 11th by the faculty and students of the University of Dayton with an academic reception honoring Rev. Walter C. Tredtin, S.M., president of the university. This marks the first time that the University of Dayton has observed "President's Day".

The program opened with an academic procession, with faculty and students wearing caps and gowns. Maurice R. Reichard was director of the musical program. Two violin solos were played by Lionel Galstaun, engineering student from San Francisco.

Dr. Adam Hoffman, S.M., dean of the college of engineering at the University of Dayton, spoke on the authority which those who have been placed at the heads of all human institutions hold, stressing the fact that all of it comes from God.

Daniel Adams, president of the senior class at the University of Dayton, conveyed the felicitations of the student body to President Tredtin on "President's Day" and he also paid tribute to the faculty members at the university.

At the close of his address Father Tredtin announced that the Easter holidays would begin at once, continuing until Thursday, April 20, at 8 a. m. Father Tredtin's "President's Day" address follows:

"The world is governed more by ideals than by ideas. Most men are swayed by sentiment, by convention, by selfish motives, by egotistic ambitions. Urged by a desire for speedy attainment they do not stop to ask: What is right? What is best? What is noblest? They ask themselves rather: What is most expedient? We are living in an age in which the natural replaces the supernatural; the material supersedes the spiritual.

"Thus we are exposed to be swept into the drift towards materialistic existence. The vast majority of people are so engrossed in wage earning that they must forego the nobler pursuits of life in order to make a living. But in every civilization there have been some leaders who nourished ideals and it is along the lines of their idealism that true progress has been made.

"A ready illustration of the point I am making is our master idealist in Washington, D. C., President Roosevelt. In the short space of five weeks he has erected many monuments to his administration: the provision for an adequate and sound currency; strict supervision of banking and credits and investments; prohibition of speculation with other people's money; restoration of legal beer; employment for the idle in his re-forestation project. But these acts are not ends in themselves, they are only the means he makes use of in the pursuit of his ideal. They are so many rays from his guiding star, which is the dispensing of social justice to all the people. Justice is the cause, these measures are the effects. Under a tottering form of democratic government our President is building up the sustaining pillars of distributive and commutative justice. Soon he will rescue our country from the dominion of plutocracy and give it back to the American people. Such a transcendent task can be accomplished only by a man of ideals.

"The University of Dayton has its ideal—complete Christian education, in which it teaches that the heart of education is the education of the heart; the soul of culture is the culture of the soul; the making of a living is not the making of life. Through its educational system runs the golden thread that ties and unites all its departments. Whatever be the method of instruction, righteousness is the end; whatever be the subject taught, virtue is the goal.

"To this program of Christian education the University of Dayton brings a staff of highly cultured Christian gentlemen, most of whom are unsalaried religious men, who neither demand nor expect any material remuneration for their services; they look forward only for the blessing of God and the gratitude of a loyal student body, which is best exemplified in a practical daily application of classroom precepts.

"The ideal of the University includes the expansion of its activities. In the immediate future the expansion will be more vertical than horizontal. In altitude the University shall increase its efficiency of service to the student and community and in depth it will discover more thoroughly the rock-ribbed principles on which the fabric of Christian education is built.

"Our work here at the University proceeds according to definite plans. It has been very encouraging to me in my administration efforts to be told by several professors of the visible growth in campus spirit of the student body since the beginning of the scholastic year. Probably our movements sometimes seem to the casual observer like a jig-saw puzzle. However, the pieces already fitted together give promise of a beautiful and useful design. Those who are putting them together, you and I, must have faith in one another, and patience, for the full measure of results."

Rev. Kunnecke Announces New Book Finished

New revised and enlarged edition of "The Way Out and the Way Beyond," the work of Rev. Francis J. Kunnecke, S.M., professor of philosophy and political economy at the University of Dayton, will go to press shortly and will soon be ready for distribution, it was announced recently.

Father Kunnecke has selected "Out of the Depression in Sixty Days" as the subtitle for his new book. It is eagerly anticipated.

Over three thousand copies of his first pamphlet have been sold to date, the first printing being entirely exhausted. Special mimeographed forms of the new book are available now in limited numbers.

Father Kunnecke's plan for economic recovery and the prevention of similar depressions in the future has met with nation-wide interest. The new book, when published, will be available to University of Dayton alumni.

Father Kunnecke gave the principal address at the meeting of the Dayton Federation of Catholic Women on March 30 at the Dayton Biltmore hotel. His subject was: "The Catholic Woman in the Present Crisis." Mrs. John Westendorf, president of the federation, presided at the meeting. Bishop William Albers of Cincinnati was the guest of honor at the affair.

Father Kunnecke will give an address before the Jewish women's club of Dayton April 26th at the Dayton Biltmore hotel.

The Omnipotent State

MANY Americans today are puzzled at the exercise of enormous powers by the President because of the critical situation in which the country finds itself. They may recall with greater or less distinctness the first attempts at democratic government after the Declaration of Independence, when the central government was purposely kept weak so that there might be no infringement on the rights of the sovereign states. After experience had proved that the Confederation was an unworkable scheme, men of the Jeffersonian school fought the policies of the Federalists who desired a strong federal government at the expense of state rights. At a time when the centripetal forces were greater than the centrifugal it was providential that the Federalists won the day; in time, however, the decentralizing influences gained the upper hand. The trend towards centralization manifests itself more and more today with a consequent danger not merely to the rights of particular states, but also of individuals.

There are times, such as the present for example, when the red tape of legislative bodies must be cut so as to secure speedy action on measures. In critical junctures the surest way of handling the momentous problems confronting a government is by the exercise of an actual or virtual dictatorship; this presupposes an individual with poise and clear vision for dictatorships easily lead to despotism. In this country such a danger is more remote because of the constitutional checks upon the Chief Executive. The latter cannot act without legislation which is furnished by Congress; this body can oppose the presidential demands which are or seem to it to be unreasonable or at least not beneficial.

Countries like Italy, Germany, Russia, Spain, and right at our own door, Mexico, present the spectacle of absolute governments in fact if not in name. It is true Italy and Germany are opposed to Communism, whereas Russia, Spain and Mexico are communistic in government, yet all are grounded on the same basic political philosophy.

No one can validly deny the immense benefits which Mussolini has conferred on Italy in putting it on a sounder economic basis; he has undoubtedly produced a national consciousness unknown since the days when Rome was mistress of the world. His counterpart in Germany lacks perhaps Mussolini's unselfishness; time alone will tell what the Hitler regime is going to mean for Germany, for Europe and for the world.

Will Durant occasionally says things with which we can agree. There is no difficulty in endorsing what he has to say of Russia's government: "The issue of the matter is that today it becomes possible to deal with the political life of Soviet Russia under the rubrics of a dictatorship, supposedly of the proletariat, first over the nation as a whole, then openly over the middle class, then covertly over the peasantry, finally over the proletariat itself. Nature will out." As the same political system holds sway in Mexico and Spain, the same statements may be made of these two countries.

We can learn from what is going on in these countries, because there is a danger of blundering in the same fashion. The basic philosophy of the countries mentioned is the supremacy of the state in every domain: religion, education, the family, etc. Soviet Russia, Spain and Mexico have declared war on religion; Communism is essentially atheistic and materialistic in character. In other countries where there is not the active opposition to religion, there is the open or secret endeavor to control the Church in religious matters, so that it becomes merely a department of the State, a useful agency in keeping the people subservient to the constituted government.

It is particularly with regard to education and the family that the fallacy and danger of the principle of State supremacy reveal themselves. When the State attempts to dominate the whole field of education it is infringing on a primary right vested in parents. Let the advocates of a Federal Department of Education take heed; the evils of control by particular states will be accentuated so much the more when placed in the hands of the federal government. In granting divorces, the State is arrogating to itself a right which it does not possess; to dissolve a validly contracted marriage is utterly beyond the range of its powers, for in doing so it is going counter to the natural law. This practice is a wholesale attack on the integrity of the family. We may add as further examples of what state absolutism involves, legalizing abortion and sterilization, attacks on fundamental rights of individuals to life and the integrity of their bodies. This is just a step removed from legalizing euthanasia, of which advocates are to be found.

The Declaration of Independence, as well as the first amendments of the Constitution, recognizes certain inalienable rights, which can neither be renounced by the individual nor taken away from him. Every right-thinking citizen must resist with all his might any attempts to rob him or any member of the community of any of these rights on the false supposition that all power is given to the State.

Ed Hamant to Play at Number One Post on Flyer Golf Team; Schedule Comprises 13 Tilts

BY MARK A. SMITH, '35

THE University of Dayton golf team which is the strongest in the history of the school was chosen recently by Jim Noble, professional of the Miami Valley Golf course, the home grounds of the Red and Blue outfit.

Eddie Hamant, No. 1 man of the 1932 Ohio Champs, will again hold the leading position on the Hilltop quartet. At the number two post for the Flyers will be Nelson Ruddy, former amateur champion of Cincinnati and one of the best golfers in the state. Both of these linksmen are consistent shooters in the seventies, and are considerably better than the average college golfers.

Hughie Wall, who was a member of last year's golf team, will hold down the No. 3 position on the South Park combination. Wall is accurate with his irons and his game is not far behind that of Hamant and Ruddy.

Two men who have equal ability on the links will alternate at the fourth berth on the aggregation. Cliff Hamant, younger brother of Ed, and Tom Carey, No. 3 man of the 1932 Flyer golf foursome, are the two pill-pasters. Cliff is a former star of the 1931 Chaminade Hi combination, which won the city championship of Dayton; while Carey displays his wares on the greensward in Cleveland.

Mark Smith, a sophomore, will be the sixth member of the Flyer squad.

The schedule, which was recently completed by Manager Vin Kirk, comprises thirteen games and the Ohio Intercollegiate Tourney. The opening tilt of the season will be played in Cincinnati on April 17 with the Bearcats providing the opposition. On the following day the Flyers travel to Bloomington where they meet Indiana University, and then journey the next day to Lexington, Ky., where they engage the University of Kentucky in a match.

The Hilltoppers return home after their first trip and play Toledo, Wittenberg, Kentucky and Centre in the last week of April. In May the Red and Blue golfers face Detroit on two occasions, and Michigan, Toledo, Wittenberg and Cincinnati each once. The Ohio Intercollegiate Tournament will take place at Cleveland on May 19 and 20.

"Harvard" Wins Spring Grid Title of U D

"Harvard" won the spring football championship of the University of Dayton by defeating "Princeton," 7 to 0, in the final game of the round robin series for the intersquad title.

The final games played on April 8 concluded five weeks of intensive drilling for the Flyers. The Red and Blue gridders will rest until returning from the spring vacation on April 19 and then will practice ten days for the annual game with the graduating seniors which will be played in the stadium on April 30.

Princeton played the first game of the afternoon against Yale and managed to gain a tie. Going into the final contest against Harvard the Princetons needed no more than another tie to win the championship but they succumbed in the second quarter in the face of a beautiful 20-yard pass thrown by Vince McDonough, freshman halfback, to Captain Bob Payne. Payne caught the ball over the goal line for the touchdown that brought the victory and the title to the boys who were coached by George Gorry and John Medley, Flyer stars of the past three years.

In the Yale game Princeton was on the defensive throughout, but withstood every attack of the veteran Eli eleven. Early in the first quarter Yale gained heavily on an exchange of punts and took the ball on Princeton's 35-yard mark. From there Joe McFadden, Eddie Meisner and Tommy Hannegan drove to the four-yard line. But then the Yales lost six yards in three plays and Zang's attempted place kick on fourth down was wide of the uprights.

In the second quarter, Yale managed to drive to the 20-yard mark, but again Princeton stiffened and took the ball on downs.

Vince McDonough, the Cleveland freshman, was again the outstanding backfield performer and other backfield stars were Marty Armbruster, Mike Usas, Elmer Zang and Joe McFadden.

Bob Rader, Jim Holstein, Ted Armstrong, John McCluskey and Zierolf were among the stalwarts on the line.

Flyers Defeated in Initial Baseball Tilt

Due to the fact that many of the Hilltop diamond players were engaged in the Spring football season, the Flyer baseball club was forced to play their initial game without practice. However, despite this handicap, the Baujanites made a fine showing, and almost beat the H & B Red Bars of Dayton on April 9. The final score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Riverdale hitters.

H & B hopped off to an early lead when a baserunner, walked by Jim McCarthy, scored from second on an overthrow to third by Mike Usas. The Flyers were unable to score in this frame, being put out in order by Lefty Tell of the invaders.

The Flyers made their two runs in the third inning when Lou Tschudi, leading batter of the 1932 Flyer club, came through with a homer over the center field bank. McCarthy, who had singled before Tschudi smacked his liner, scored also, giving the Red and Blue its pair of markers.

In the fourth inning Hogle retaliated with a round trip clout to center with one man on, to give the H & B club a one-run lead they never relinquished, the game ending without further scoring.

Many veterans displayed their wares for the Flyers. Lou Tschudi, Bob Payne, Jim Cleary, Hausfield and Danny Gill were members of last year's baseball team.

McCarthy and Gill pitched excellent ball for the Flyers in the opener. Gill blanked the victors during the last five rounds.

Harry Baujan has scheduled eight college games for the Hilltop crew. Home and home encounters will be staged with Wittenberg, Wilmington, Cedarville and Earlham. Besides the college tilts, the Flyers will also play the Dayton Ducks and various teams in the city.

U D Donates Garden Ground to Unemployed

University of Dayton recently donated the use of a large section of land to the unemployed of the City of Dayton to be used for the cultivation of vegetables this spring and summer.

The land, which was purchased from the Pennsylvania railroad, is situated behind Alumni Hall. Recently junior engineers measured off the terrain which is divided into forty plots, each 30 by 80 feet.

Last year the land was obtainable by anyone, but this year it will be restricted to the unemployed. No charges for the plots are to be made.

It is expected that the vegetables raised on one plot during the summer will support the average family throughout the ensuing winter. Last year one family raised enough vegetables for their own use and obtained $30 from the sale of their surplus products.

Newman Is Subject of Dr. Boll's Talk

"Cardinal Newman lives on his works, and must always be considered as one of the greatest thinkers of all times," Dr. Lawrence Boll, S.M., professor of English at the University of Dayton, told a large audience assembled at the Loretto Monday night, March 27, to hear his lecture, "The Secret of Newman's Power." This lecture was under the auspices of the Bellarmine society of the Loretto.

Dr. Boll also gave a number of speeches on the "Dramatic Element in the Catholic Liturgy." He spoke on March 12 to a large audience at St. Elizabeth's hospital and gave similar lectures to the Sodality of Mary of the University and to the general public at St. Joseph Institute.

Portrait of Dean Will Be Given to U D Library

Plans for the formal presentation of the portrait of Judge Robert C. Patterson, dean of the college of law at the University of Dayton, which was made by Sandor Vago, famous Cleveland artist, have been announced tentatively by Daniel W. Iddings, prominent Dayton attorney and law faculty member, who is chairman of the committee planning the affair.

According to present plans the formal presentation will be made on Thursday, April 27th, in the auditorium of the Albert Emmanuel Library.

Present plans call for Francis C. Canny, also a member of the law faculty at the university, to give a short talk in appreciation of the work of Judge Patterson as dean of the law school.

Dr. Stephan A. Hosko, brother-in-law of Sandor Vago, will make the formal presentation of the portrait, which has just recently been completed. Rev. Walter Tredtin, S.M., president of the University, will make a short acceptance speech.

Instrumental numbers will be furnished by the department of music at the University, under the leadership of Maurice R. Reichard.

Activities of U D Engineers

The University of Dayton student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers made a trip to Osborn, Ohio, and made an inspection of the Wabash Cement Co. Recently the organization, under the guidance of Mr. Joe Unger, U. D. graduate engineer, made inspection of a portion of the Springfield pike.

Two seminar talks were given in the Electrical Engineering department recently. The first of these was delivered by Mr. Riley, who discussed the new developments in plant germination by electrical heating process, and gave illustrative examples showing the differences between the old hot-house method and this new development. Mr. Helldoerfer gave the second of this series and in his discussion explained some of the newer developments in air cooled transformers and cited their advantages as to safety and economy.

The Junior and Senior Mechanical Engineers took a trip to visit Youcon

Engineering Company. This company makes airplane parts for the U. S. Government. The most interesting part of the trip was the information that was received about welding. It was learned how parts are welded to pass Government inspection. The trip was arranged by John Litherland, who formerly worked for the owners.

Dr. Hosko Gets Title

Prime Minister of Hungary was the title conferred upon Prof. Stephen A. Hosko, instructor at the U D, who was toastmaster recently at a dinner given by the American-Hungarian Citizens club in honor of Robert C. Corwin, Dayton attorney.

Prof. Hosko, after several years of research, authenticated the fact that Corwin has the right to the title of King of Hungary through heredity.

Dr. Koller Plans Trip To Ohio Caves

Plans for the second annual trip to the Ohio Caverns are being completed by Dr. Paul Koller, head of the mineralogy and geology department of the University of Dayton. This trip, open to all students of the University, can be made for the complete all-expense rate of $2.25, which provides a round-trip transportation in deluxe cars, entrance fee to cave, and lunch.

Dr. Koller says that the trip is to be made in the first week of May.

In making his plans, Dr. Koller cited the success of last year's trip to the caverns. He stated that it was very interesting and instructive, having been enjoyed immensely by all those who took it. "These caves," he said, "are even better than the larger ones because they contain many more wonderful formations and genuine specimens in a small area."

Delivers Talks At Assemblies

"One cannot study biology and long remain an Atheist" was the theme of the talks given by Dr. William Beck, Professor of Biology at the University of Dayton, when he addressed the student body during the Monday morning assemblies of March 20 to 28. By the use of slides he clearly showed that the arrangement of the organs of the body and of the building up of these widely different organs from the same original cell could not have come about by chance, but that there must be some God of supreme power to direct and control these works. By a close study of the eyes of animals and of man, he traced the evolution of the human eye and showed again that this was the work of God.

The Alumni Problem

DOZENS of alumni have written to explain that they could not pay this year, but would pay just as soon as conditions improve. In every case they have been assured that their continued interest is deeply appreciated. However, too many of our alumni, who can afford to contribute, have been satisfied to give us spiritual support and call it quits. We appreciate spiritual and moral support, but we need more than that—we need FINANCIAL support.

There are countless services for the Association to perform, all of which cost money. All expenses have been slashed to the bone. Unless our delinquent members contribute some amount of money NOW, the Alumni Association may be forced to undergo even more severe and harmful paring—following the discontinuance of our alumni magazine. It is no longer a matter of another simple 10, 20, or 30 per cent cut; it looks now like a matter of keeping the Association alive.

Meanwhile, with the University itself facing the troubled times, the need for the Alumni Association and its activities, for a thoroughly informed alumni body and its support, is greater than ever.

How about it? May we ask each alumnus to soberly think of the Alumni Association and its problems, even though he may be wrestling with his own.
